

BRITAIN FIRST:
TAKING OUR COUNTRY BACK,
ONE CAMPAIGN AT A TIME!

BRITAIN FIRST: TAKING OUR COUNTRY BACK, ONE CAMPAIGN AT A TIME!

Britain First is a modern, responsible patriotic campaigning organisation that uses the latest methods in activist and digital campaigning to fight the many social and cultural injustices that are routinely inflicted on the British people.

Our people have, in effect, been left defenceless, voiceless and marginalised by our political leaders. We are now second-class citizens in our own country, a country that millions of our people have died to defend.

Political correctness is now a widespread oppressive force in many people's lives. Decent people now feel fearful at expressing their views on many subjects for fear of being labelled intolerant.

Today Britain is a place where British history, traditions and culture are effectively forbidden and systematically discouraged.

Our politicians and the media elite ignore the wishes of the majority on issues such as pensions, capital punishment, the EU takeover of our country and rising fuel costs.

Even the few patriotic politicians we have offer little in the way of an effective solution to the problems this nation and our people now face.

Christianity in Britain is under ferocious assault. Many Christians now regularly face discrimination and persecution in many areas.

British workers are finding it increasingly difficult to get a job because of the failed policies of unbridled free trade, mass immigration and recession created by the banks.

British workers must be put first, and we intend to campaign hard to highlight the discrimination faced by many British employees and employers.

Workers' rights, not bankers' rights, will be our starting point. Many dishonest MPs are abusing the expenses system, all paid for by the British taxpayer.

Britain First will expose these fraudsters with investigative public campaigns that will shine the spotlight on the underhanded dealings which are destroying the public confidence in the political system.

Local people are routinely pushed to the back of housing queues to make way for incoming economic refugees and migrants - this must stop, fairness must be applied to all, not just the favoured groups who play the 'victimhood' card to gain an unfair advantage over the local community.

Britain First will organise to assist those who are being discriminated against and will apply pressure to those organisations, councils and government quangos responsible.

Immigration is spiralling out of control placing unsustainable demands upon this country's resources, with health care, housing and the environment are all being seriously damaged by these unbearable and unfair burdens.

The rapid growth of militant Islam is leading to the suppression of women, freedom of speech and racist attacks. We will campaign for parity of esteem for the people of this country and for the end of fanaticism and religious intolerance.

Thousands of hardworking people are now suffering institutionalised discrimination in housing, access to local services and in benefits, all due to the massive influx of bogus asylum seekers and economic 'migrants'.

Politically correct policing, media bias and insane local authority policies mean that millions of our people suffer these injustices in silence. Enough is enough. It is time to defend the victims of this widespread discrimination and secure equal rights for the silent majority.

This is exactly what Britain First seeks to do: to lobby, cajole, expose, demonstrate and organise on behalf of our beleaguered people.

Britain First will roll out a series of campaigns, training seminars and conferences around the country to raise awareness on issues of concern to our people and to empower our communities to take action in defence of their rights.

Remember, it was our ancestors built this country, nobody else. It was our fathers and grandfathers whose blood soaked the fields of Flanders and the beaches of Normandy and it was our mothers and grandmothers who buried their sons with quiet dignity and British resolve.

Why not join the growing legions of disaffected Brits taking a stand against the betrayal of our country. If you want to make a real difference, if you want to defend our children and grandchildren, if you want to honour our glorious past, then it's time to join Britain First. We want our country back and we shall not rest until our land is free!

POLITICAL REALITY: CAMPAIGN GROUPS ARE THE NEW POLITICAL PARTIES!

In today's society, whatever political party wins an election, the policies of the previous government continue, albeit with a different marketing spin. It not surprising that people find it difficult to differentiate between the three main parties.

Yet we live in extraordinary times: rampant immigration, the rise of militant Islam, high unemployment, widening inequality and a 1930s style economic collapse.

Back in the 1930s it could be claimed that politics was "real". Imagine the House of Commons containing politicians as diverse as Oswald Mosley, Winston Churchill, and Clement Attlee. Debate was an ideological battle between competing and divergent groups. It was politics in the raw.

Today's politics are sterile by comparison, a mere sham to fool the people.

Fierce debate in the Commons has largely been replaced by indistinguishable governments rehashing the same anti-British policies and schemes.

No wonder people are frustrated and cynical, and we see that at the polls with electoral turnouts at an all time low and mass voter disenfranchisement.

In a hypothetical situation, even if we pulled all British patriotic parties together, we would still be only the rump of a fringe movement with absolutely no power to influence anything.

After thirty years of shouting in the wilderness us British patriots need to understand this reality and change tact if we are ever to save this country and our people from the EU, politically correct, multicultural insanity that is now engulfing us. We can never win playing by the establishment rules, so why do it?

Remember the famous saying: "If voting changed anything it would be illegal." Using the means of social networking, and fuelled by disillusionment, there has been a dramatic growth in campaign enterprises.

These "campaign groups" cover a variety of issues ranging from climate change to world poverty, from political reform to fighting government spending cuts.

Campaign groups are rapidly replacing political parties as the voice of the people. The advantage of campaign groups is their ability to focus on one issue and relentlessly pursue it through creative and innovative techniques. Campaigners fill gaps where politicians are either too frightened to go, or have been advised to avoid.

Campaigning organisations are not new phenomena. One of the most successful and famous campaign organisations is Green Peace. It started out in 1971 with anti-nuclear protests in Vancouver, and now has offices in over 40 countries.

Compare that to patriotic/nationalist parties and you start to get the picture.

Campaign groups come in different shapes and sizes. "UK Uncut", for example, has mobilised young people in a way that the main political parties can only dream of. Unfortunately most campaigning groups are leftwing.

This has now changed with the arrival of Britain First. Campaign groups cannot change laws directly - only parliament can do that. However, they can raise awareness and put pressure on governments, corporations and individuals to act.

The sad truth is, in today's world you would probably have a greater impact by joining a campaign group than by going into politics. Politics is entirely dominated and controlled by the establishment.

That's why patriots must embrace campaigning. The establishment has the voting system sewn up. They know that the best way to stifle the silent patriotic majority is to keep us boxed up in a political party mindset.

They know we will never really get anywhere in their media-rigged electoral system, but politics will keep us occupied, draining our energies, finances and our will to fight.

This ensures the survival of our rotten establishment and guarantees our impotency, as we exhaust ourselves fighting elections on their terms, with their rules, playing their game.

The political elite must be laughing at us, but they won't be laughing much longer now we are on to them.

Is it any wonder we are going nowhere and the patriotic, nationalist movement is tearing itself apart? For too long the powers that be have taken us for fools, but some of us have recently woken up. We will not play by their rules anymore.

Please turn overleaf...

Yes, political parties are still needed, but it's on the ground, through campaigns, pressure and lobbying, that we stand the best chance of success and that's why we have launched Britain First.

This is not to say that politics is a "no-go" area for campaign groups, quite to the contrary. Many campaign groups stand in high profile by-elections on single issues that are "burning hot" in the media.

Some of these campaign groups achieve astonishingly high votes and some even get elected, gaining enormous publicity for their particular cause.

Think of all the major decision-changing movements you know about: animal rights, climate change, environmentalism, gay-rights and feminism. They were all brought about by campaigning movements, not political parties, and nearly all liberal-leftist in nature. Political struggles are waged in a variety of ways, hardly ever relying on politics alone. Such an approach is very one dimensional.

Other successful movements utilise politics, campaigning, lobbying, legal approaches, civil rights activism, cultural awareness, demonstrations and so on.

In Britain, traditionally, the only real vehicle for the advancement of the interests of our own people has been a political party - however, these political parties seem to be failing on a huge scale, leaving our people voiceless.

Famous, and effective, campaign groups include Friends of the Earth (environment), Green Peace (environment), Animal Liberation Front (animal rights), Fathers for Justice (fathers' rights), Amnesty International (human rights), Outrage (gay rights), Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (nuclear weapons), Stop the War (Iraq/Afghanistan) and the Taxpayers' Alliance (government spending).

In the United States, there are dozens of powerful, well organised "campaign organisations", just like Britain First, the most famous of which is the "Tea Party", which, although only around a year old, has 220,000 members already!

The Tea Party has hundreds of thousands of active supporters and is backed by an estimated 17-19 million people...and they are a campaign organisation, not a political party.

Is this approach successful in the USA? Absolutely, the Tea Party organisation's support and backing for candidates who support their platform of patriotism and old fashioned conservative values has decided the electoral outcome of whole swathes of America.

The liberal-left are happy to see us flail about fighting each other over crumbs dropped from the political tables of our masters.

These crumbs will never make us strong enough to effect any real change and they know this. They want us tied up in political 'dead ends' to keep us weak.

While we are doing this we pose them no danger but that has all changed now. For many years the patriots behind Britain First have studied the best of our enemy's techniques and combined them with British pride, decency, determination and our work ethic.

Now we can fight back effectively. Now we can stop burning our people out in futile political pantomimes.

Now we can, and will, use our resources (activists being the most important) to the greatest effect in order to defend our people and nation, using the proven techniques that our enemies have been using against us for years.

No more wasting our people's time and smashing our aspirations. We will change things and we want you to be a part of this movement.

Let's face it: we all know things need to change. Well, this is it! Remember: if you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

Campaigning politically has proven to be more effective than political campaigns. Facts are facts. Isn't it time we patriots climbed onboard and fought without our hands being tied?

Complaining and navel gazing won't help our people, but action will. Now is your chance to join something better and help build the new British Resistance to political correctness, multiculturalism and the EU takeover of our once free and sovereign nation.

This modern political phenomenon has now arrived and we want you to be a part of it, we want you to be a part of the British fightback by joining Britain First. It is time for the sons and daughters of Britannia to rise up and reclaim our birthright.
